

An award-winner at film festivals around the world, SUMMER STORM is a film about rowing, competition and the emotional turmoil of growing up. The story unfolds as crews gather in the German countryside for a summer rowing camp and the championship regatta. The stroke and 7-seat, Tobi and Achim, have been lifelong best friends and the key to several winning rowing seasons. But problems arise as Achim's relationship with his girlfriend grows serious, and Tobi starts to realize that his feelings for Achim run deeper than he's willing to admit. As team captain, Tobi feels confused, unsure of himself and increasingly isolated. When a team of athletic, cliché-busting gay rowers arrives, Tobi and his teammates are suddenly forced to grapple with their prejudices, fears, and, perhaps, their hidden longings.
